

Saint Jayvees Face Warriors

Scheduled to meet the St. John's Junior Varsity this Friday afternoon at 3:45 p.m., the Wakefield Warriors once again find themselves facing the unknown quantities of JV competition.

As far as head coach Dick Johnson has any way of knowing, the St. John's Junior Varsity, like the ones also to be played this season from George Washington High School of Alexandria, and Washington-Lee High School here in the County, comprise the unheard-of boys from the otherwise powerful football machines.

Even St. John's varsity coach Joe Gallagher last night claimed he had no inkling of who any particular standouts might be. Gallagher stated, "we play our junior varsity teams to win games, of course, but naturally the purpose of the JV squad is to provide a practice program for the younger players." Morgan Wooten will actually be the St. John's Junior varsity coached coming once for the game on Friday.

Wakefield, on the other hand, is pointing at pride to any number of its players who have shown particular promise in the pre-season practices and in last Saturday's opening game against George Mason.

Dave Mohrhardt, who actually scored two touchdowns for the Warriors, although the first score was called back due to a penalty, is nowadays being groomed for more offensive consideration.

Original plans had called for Mohrhardt to be used chiefly as a defensive back, but his speed and small stature now seem of more than equal value on the Warrior offensive, too. Coach Johnson yesterday added that "Mohrhardt isn't a bad passer, either, which is where we've been hurting most up until now."

Donny Gardiner yesterday put on a sparkling exhibition of punting out of bounds as he enjoyed his first extensive workout since spraining his right ankle in a practice last week. Under the watchful eye of backfield coach Bill Edmondson, Gardiner was punting high and long, giving the ball just enough angle on the spiral to create plenty of favorable downfield bounces.

While Gardiner probably will not see action in this week's game, except for punting, extra point placements, and kickoffs, his improved condition together with the other bright notes of the Warrior practice sessions these days, have noticeably perked up the Wakefield morale.
